

God Provides Abundantly

"I believe in God, the Father almighty, creator of heaven and earth."

Luther explains that the first article of the Apostles' Creed confesses: "God daily and abundantly provides shoes and clothing, food and drink, house and farm, spouse and children, fields, livestock, and all property—along with all the necessities and nourishment for this body and life."

This statement acknowledges that all we have is from God. What is mine is mine only because God has given it to me. It is NOT the case that some things belong to me and some to God. All belong to God—and this God preserves them daily.

Remember that when Luther wrote these explanations the vast majority of people possessed far less than the typical Canadian today. Poverty, disease and other threats to life were rampant. Yet Christians confessed in Luther's words that God "daily and abundantly provides...all the necessities..."

Reflect on your life. Think of ways that God provides "daily and abundantly" for you.

Reflecting on the situation of other Christians in other times and other places, how do you view God's generosity to you?

—Gleaned from Stewardship for the 21st Century

Call your
Synod Office
for more on
Stewardship

God Provides Abundantly

"I believe in God, the Father almighty, creator of heaven and earth."

Luther explains that the first article of the Apostles' Creed confesses: "God daily and abundantly provides shoes and clothing, food and drink, house and farm, spouse and children, fields, livestock, and all property—along with all the necessities and nourishment for this body and life."

This statement acknowledges that all we have is from God. What is mine is mine only because God has given it to me. It is NOT the case that some things belong to me and some to God. All belong to God—and this God preserves them daily.

Remember that when Luther wrote these explanations the vast majority of people possessed far less than the typical Canadian today. Poverty, disease and other threats to life were rampant. Yet Christians confessed in Luther's words that God "daily and abundantly provides...all the necessities..."

Reflect on your life. Think of ways that God provides "daily and abundantly" for you.

Reflecting on the situation of other Christians in other times and other places, how do you view God's generosity to you?

—Gleaned from Stewardship for the 21st Century

Call your
Synod Office
for more on
Stewardship

God Provides Abundantly

"I believe in God, the Father almighty, creator of heaven and earth."

Luther explains that the first article of the Apostles' Creed confesses: "God daily and abundantly provides shoes and clothing, food and drink, house and farm, spouse and children, fields, livestock, and all property—along with all the necessities and nourishment for this body and life."

This statement acknowledges that all we have is from God. What is mine is mine only because God has given it to me. It is NOT the case that some things belong to me and some to God. All belong to God—and this God preserves them daily.

Remember that when Luther wrote these explanations the vast majority of people possessed far less than the typical Canadian today. Poverty, disease and other threats to life were rampant. Yet Christians confessed in Luther's words that God "daily and abundantly provides...all the necessities..."

Reflect on your life. Think of ways that God provides "daily and abundantly" for you.

Reflecting on the situation of other Christians in other times and other places, how do you view God's generosity to you?

—Gleaned from Stewardship for the 21st Century

Call your
Synod Office
for more on
Stewardship

